   D. Assistance given to people who are starving.
7. What is the purpose of providing first aid?
   A. To prevent accidents from happening.
   B. To help people breathe better.
   C. To help prevent a condition from worsening.
   D. To showcase our talents and abilities.
8. According to the passage, who performs first aid?
   A. Anyone around.
   B. A person with basic medical training on first aid.
   C. A nurse only.
   D. The victim's relatives.
9. Many countries provide which kind of regulations about first aid?
   A. Minimum level of first aid provision in certain circumstances.
   B. A maximum level of first aid provision in all circumstances.
   C. A certain level of first aid provision in all circumstances.
   D. A certain level of first aid provision in certain circumstances

Read the passage below and answer questions 11 - 15.

Once upon a time, the hyena and the hare were great friends. They both lived in the same compound and owned cattle together. They agreed that they would take the cattle to graze in turns. The Hare took the cattle out to graze one day and the next day the hyena did the same.

The Hyena began to get greedy. He wanted all the cattle for himself so that he may eat lots of meat without the hare complaining about it. So, he began to think of ways he could kill the hare. He tried to kill the hare several times but he always escaped. The Hare realized it was the hyena, his friend trying to kill him.

One day, the hare decided to teach the hyena a lesson. When the hyena was out herding the cattle, the hare cooked some meat. The aroma was so enticing that the hyena could not resist coming back home to feed on the meat.

As soon as the hyena sat down, the hare served him and then placed a red-hot stone inside the stew. He smeared it with oil such that it looked like a giant meat ball. The Hare then asked the hyena to open his mouth wide so that he could feed him the delicious meat. The Hyena, being greedy, opened his mouth wide and the hare poured in the meat with the hot stone. The Hyena swallowed everything whole but was soon writhing in pain because the stone burned his stomach and intestines. The Hyena died in great pain. The Hare then drove away all the cattle and built a new house for himself.

Read the passage below and answer questions 6 to 10.

Donkeys are referred to as beasts of burden. People use them to carry heavy loads. Camels are also beasts of burden. Camels are very interesting animals. They are not like any other animal in the world. Some people say that camels are ugly and clumsy but I think the camel is a very beautiful animal. Daudi takes his donkey to the river to get water. He also owns a camel.

If you watched Daudi's donkey, you would certainly laugh. The donkey is old but it jumps and runs like a youngster. Daudi cannot control it. It runs to the river very fast because its load is light. It also wants to drink water. Daudi runs after it shouting and complaining. However, it is a different story on the way back. The donkey plods very slowly and Daudi cannot make it go faster. Every time it passes our school it sings to us and we all say, 'There goes Daudi and his donkey.'

Read the story below and answer the questions 1 to 6.

On Tuesday morning, Mr. Ondimu heard loud screams from Mama Wario's house. He quickly put on his clothes and ran out of his shanty towards the area of the screams. He ran as fast as a deer as he had no shoes. On his arrival to Mama Wario's home, he got covered by a thick black smoke. This smoke was coming from Mama Wario's house. Villagers of Tondono, police and the fire brigade were all there. Mama Wario was still screaming and shouting, "Wariooo! Hassan! Are you still there!". Some villagers held onto her to restrain her from getting into the house.

As all this was going on, the fire brigade and some villagers were busy trying to put out the fire that was causing the smoke. The fire brigade used their hose pipes to extinguish the fire. The villagers did not hesitate to use buckets of sand and water to put out the fire. The efforts were seen to be bearing fruit as the fire started ceasing. As all this was happening Mr. Ondimu just stood shocked watching the tragic event in disbelief. He had not uttered any word in the five minutes he had been in Mama Wario's compound. "Mzee Katumo, what caused this fire breakout?" asked Mr. Ondimu.

Mr. Katumo replied, 'I really don't know, let's ask the police to tell us more about the cause of this incident'. As they were approaching one police officer, the fire brigade was seen carrying Wario and Hassan out of the house. They were unconscious and were therefore rushed to hospital.

Mr. Ondimu and Mr. Katumo approached the officer and it was confirmed to them that the fire had been caused by leaking paraffin from a stove that had been lit to prepare tea. The police officer also told them that Mama Wario had gone to buy bread when the fire broke out. She had left Wario and Hassan asleep.

Questions

1. What kind of house does Mr. Ondimu live in?

Read the following passage and answer questions 12 to 15.

Once upon a time there lived a very tall animal. His name was Mr Sungura. Sungura was a very mean and lazy animal. He hated working while other animals were busy in the shamba. He used to wait till the harvest time, where animals would harvest their crops and store them in the granary. During night time, Mr Sungura would come and steal all their harvest.

He would hide the harvest and not share with any other animal. This would make animals starve while others died. This habit made the animals get worried and they decided to trap and punish the animal that was stealing their harvest.

They dug a hole in the last granary and put Mr Lion on guard. Mr Sungura came in at night to steal the harvest in the last granary. He was not aware of the dug hole. While hurrying to steal from the granary he fell into the hole. Mr Lion heard a huge thud from the hole and started screaming.

The animals started gathering around the hole and found Mr Sungura lying helplessly in the hole. Mr Sungura was given a serious beating by the other animals and finally they cut his long legs and attached short legs to his body. Read the following passage and answer questions 6 to 10.

The owner of a missing puppy is asking for help. "My baby has been missing for over a month now, and I want him back so badly," said Mrs. Naliaka, a fifty-six-year-old woman. Mrs. Naliaka lives by herself in a trailer park near the park. She said that Clyde, her one-year-old puppy, didn't come home for dinner more than a month ago, so she called the police. When the policeman asked her to describe Clyde, she told him that Clyde had beautiful green eyes, had all his teeth but was missing half of his left ear, and was completely white. She then told the officer that Clyde was about a foot high.

A bell went off. "Is Clyde your child or your pet?" the officer suspiciously asked, "Well, he's my puppy," Mrs. Naliaka replied. "Lady, you're supposed to report missing PERSONS, not missing DOGS," said the irritated policeman. "Well, who can I report this to?" She asked. "You can't. You have to ask around your neighborhood or put-up flyers," replied the officer.

Mrs. Naliaka figured that a billboard would work better than a piece of paper on a telephone pole. There was an empty billboard at the end of her street just off the roundabout on the highway. The bill board had a phone number on it. She called that number, and they told her they could blow up a picture of Clyde from Mrs. Naliaka's picture album and put it on the billboard for all to see. "But how can people see it when they walk by on the roundabout?" She asked. "Oh, don't worry, ma'am, the roundabout is so full of commuters that no one moves." They told her it would cost only three thousand two hundred and three shillings a month.

The month has passed, but Clyde has not appeared. Because she has almost no money in savings, Mrs. Naliaka called the local newspaper to see if anyone could help her rent the billboard for just one more month. She is waiting but, so far, no one has stepped forward.

Read the following passage and answer questions 11 to 15.

I haven't always liked dancing. In fact, my parents couldn't get me to go to classes when I was young, no matter how hard they tried. My mum had been a professional dancer and always told me how much I'd enjoy it if I joined a dance group. Unfortunately, I was very shy as a child and I didn't like to meet new people. I was much happier watching the TV or playing at home with my sister. When my mum tried to get me to attend a dance class I refused.

Soon after I started secondary school, I saw a group of girls dancing to the latest songs in the school gym. They looked really good and I started to take an interest in the class, even though it was just looking through the window at first. Then one day a friend of mine asked me if I wanted to join. I liked the idea of starting with someone I knew. Moreover, we had both danced together for fun at my house or her house, so it didn't seem like such a big step to join a class together.

That was 3 years ago. Since then, I've been going every week and I love it. Sometimes I help teach the classes for the little children. People tell me I'm very good and my teacher has said I should enter local competitions, even ones that could mean you dance on TV.

Questions

11. What does the writer say about her parents?
   A. They loved to dance together.
   B. One of them was a dancer.
   C. They tried to teach her how to dance.

D. They had a dancing school.

    A. suddenly decided to join the dancing class
    B. watched PE lessons in the gym
    C. enjoyed watching the dancing class
    D. liked reading books.
14. Why did the writer decide to join the class?
    A. She had someone to go with.
    B. She knew someone who was already going to the class.
    C. She didn't like dancing at home.
    D. She was big enough to join.
15. What does the writer say about dancing? She
    A. thinks she is a very good dancer

Father: Where is your mother?
Charlotte: She is in the kitchen preparing our supper.

Father: Good. Before she is done, I want us to discuss something about table manners and etiquette. Just shortly.

Hugh: Yes, our teacher of English told us to collect facts about the same.

Father: First it is always good to serve small portions of food at a time. This is important because there will be very slim chances of leftovers. Sometimes, the leftovers go bad before the next day.

Charlotte: Yes and this results to wastage. I think it is also good not to speak with food in our mouth. Particles may fall on others' foods which is very disgusting.

Hugh: Daddy, Charlotte why is it important to chew our food properly before swallowing?

Father: This is because when the food is not properly chewed, it may lead to choking and.....

Charlotte: Yes, and in some cases, choking may lead to death.

Hugh: When chewing our food, our mouth must be closed. Other people should not see the food in our mouth as we chew it. Some people do not like to see this.

Father: Finally, we should not lick our fingers after eating, even if the food was extremely delicious. These and many more are called table manners and etiquette. I believe that you will have enough points to present to Madam Zuchu.

Hugh: Yes, thank you very much for your points.

It is common practices to see a person pick a book and start reading anyhow without organisation. Such reading cannot be of benefit to the readers. Reading is an advanced art that requires early preparation before one can claim to be reading. Without prior planning, reading will be boring and confusing adding no real value to the reader. This is contrary to the requirements of reading. Any reading should help the reader comprehend and recall what he or she is reading. For this reason, reading ought to be given the attention it deserves.

Before reading, the reader needs to ensure that there is adequate light. Let the light should be friendly to the eyes. Secondly, the place should be quiet and comfortable. For instance, a place with numerous movements is not the best. The reader will be forced to keep turning to see whoever is passing. In this way, the flow of information into the brain will be disrupted. Anytime you read, all your attention should be focused on what you are reading.

Which type of reading cannot be of benefit to the reader?

A. The one involving proper plans before starting
B. Reading without any organisation
C. Reading for the sake of buying time
D. Reading that is well organised

7. One of the requirements of reading is that

A. reading should add value to the reader
B. books must be handled carefully when reading
C. all readers should read the same taste of books
D. reading should be given the attention it deserves

8. According to the passage, which one of the following is not a preparation action for a good reading?

A. Well lit rooms
B. Quiet environments
C. Places without numerous books
D. Places with little or no movements

9. The flow of the information getting into the reader's brain will be disrupted by

A. the content they are absorbing from the books
B. the amount of light in the reading area
C. poor prior preparation before starting to read

D. the movement of people around him or her

10. Read the passage and then answer questions 10 to 12.

As we approached it, I looked over my shoulder and what I saw really frightened me. The western sky was almost black and the storm had raised a huge wave which seemed like a moving mountain. As the wave inclined towards us, it looked like an enormous snake with its head in the sky. The bottom of our boat touched the sand and both of us disembarked and pulled it closer to the shore.

"We'll stay here, Omari, until the storm subsides," my uncle shouted. We ran up the beach and found a small cave beside the rocks. We threw ourselves inside and lay on the ground. Neither of us was able to stay much because we were exhausted. There was complete darkness all over the island and the wind was blowing so strongly that we could hear brunches breaking.

What does the writer mean by it in the first sentence?

A. An enormous snake
B. A huge wave
C. A gigantic moving mountain
D. The western sky

11. The writer and his uncle spent the horrible night

13. Read the passage and then answer questions 13 to 15.

Humans are social creatures and they can't live without one another. The proverb says that no man is an island. We need other people to share our joys or to share our moments of sorrow. It is therefore important to know how best we can treat people who are around us, be they family, friends or neighbours. Relating with people needs high standards of courtesy and respect. Have you ever been around someone who doesn't value your presence or help? Such people say things that make you feel unwanted or unvalued. I'm sure you won't make yourself available next time they need you.

The more you use polite words, the stronger the relationship will become. You have nothing to lose by saying sorry when you accidentally wrong someone. Saying thank you shows that you appreciate what other people do for you.

The proverb in the passage means that human beings

depend on one another

B. can comfortably live independently.
C. cannot be compared to islands.
D. and islands are different creations.

14. People who do not value our presence or help

A. help us build our self esteem.
B. make us learn how to use polite words.
C. make us avoid them next time they need us.
D. know how to put courtesy into practice.

15. For a relationship to grow even stronger, we should always

A. recognise the presence of people around us
B. avoid staying with people who do not recognise our presence
C. avoid the use of polite words
D. use polite words

The dry season was the period when all the insects worked hard on their farms, preparing for the rainy season. During the rainy season, they all remained indoors eating what they had stored during the dry season. The insects were toiling hard on their farms, replenishing their barns. The locust and the praying mantis were friends. The praying mantis was a carefree insect and always sang while his friends worked. The locust advised him to go and prepare himself for the change of weather. The mantis was no longer happy staying with his friend, so he went to visit the bee. As usual, he danced and sang while the busy bee overworked himself. The bee occasionally brought food and wine, which they shared together. Eventually, the mantis became ill and could no longer sing and dance. For eight market days, he could not leave his house.

Throughout the ages, humans have depended heavily on one of their most priceless possessions - trees. There was a time when humans obtained all their basic necessities from the trees of the forest. These needs included food, shelter, and clothing. That was in ancient times. Even today, trees are very useful to humans in countless ways. Unfortunately, forest trees are being carelessly wiped out at an alarming rate. It is time we became aware of the importance of trees and the need to preserve them for the benefit of mankind. Trees provide us with many things. One of these is food for humans, animals, birds, and insects. Throughout the ages, forests have provided wood, honey, medicinal herbs, and gum from the bark of trees. Forests can therefore be said to be a source of income for a country. Trees are also a source of fuel.
